The Russian division near Hon-Kohe

Admiral Rojestvensky had previously informed the French authorities of its proposed departure.

(By Associated Press.)

ST. PETERSBURG, May 5-1:55 P. M .-Admiral Rojestvensky, according to a high naval authority, has sailed south to meet the division of the Russian second Pacific squadron commanded by Admiral Nebogatoff.

The admiralty has information that a Japanese division of fast cruisers and torpedo boat destroyers was sent south for the purpose, if posible, of crippling or destroying Nebogatoff's ships before they can effect a junction with those of Rojestvensky, and there is reason to believe that the Japanese took up a person in the Straits of Sunda, through which Nebogatoff originally intended to make the passage into the North Sea. There is also reason to believe that Nebogatoff first approached the Straits of Sunda, but, finding them too well guardyd, put about and headed north for the Straits of Malacca, his division lacking the protection of fast cruisers and being at a great disadvantage in meeting torpedo boat attacks. The admiralty expresses much gratification at the fact that Admiral Nebogatoff has successfully reached the China Sea, but appreciates that the composition of his division renders it particularly vulnerable to a swift adversary, especially as the crews of his ships have not had the training in manoeuvering or the target practice which or destroying Nebogatoff's ships before nocuvering or the target practice Admiral Rojestvensky's crews had while off the Island of Madagascar, and the anxiety here will only be completely re-lieved when it is known that a junction has been effected.

JAPANESE RESENTFUL.

Action of France in Granting Privileges to Russians Excites People and Press. (By Associated Press.)

(By Associated Press.)
TOKIO, May 5.—Popular attention is now centered on the presence of the second Russian Pacific squadron in French waters. While assurances of France relating to the Kamranh Bay incident were generally accepted, the later discovery that the Russian ships continued their stay at Kamranh Bay, and then entered other French ports, has created a f-eling of keen disappointment, rapidly growing deeply resentful. The local press charges France with bad faith, and repeats the demands of independent action upon the part of the Japanese government. The conservative element is awaiting France's response in explanation, hoping that that governexplanation, hoping that that govern-ment will finally expel the Russian Rear Admiral, Rojestvensky, from its waters.

Admirai, Rojestvensky, from its waters.

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, May 5.—The Japanese representatives here continue to make almost daily visits to the foreign office for the purpose of learning what steps are being taken to compat the Bussian second Pacific squadron to maintain the neutrality of French states, and also to prevent the information reaching Tokto showing that the Russian warships are receiving supplies from French ports. It appears to be conceded that they are outside the three mile limit, so the question no longer hinges upon their being within French territorial waters. But the Jajanese indicate that the Russians, while they are outside beatral limits, keep up communication with the shore, thus retaining the practical advantages of remaining inside neutral waters.

Meeting in Lynchburg.

PRACTICAL

Proud of What He Has Done in Temperance Cause, He Says.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) LYNCHBURG, VA., May 5.-Judge William Hodges Mann opened his campaign in Lynchburg to-night in the Academy of Music before an audience numbering fully 900 persons. He spoke for an hour and fifteen minutes, and confined his address chiefly to the public school question, good roads, State finances and the Mann bill. Probably a half of what he said was relative to the bill of which he was the patron. The meeting was presided over by R. W. Massie, and N. C. Manson, Jr., in-

Judge Mann's effort was followed by his audience closely. When he went upon the stage he was accorded a liberal ovation, and frequently his speech was punctuated with hearty applause.

He said he desired to touch briefly upon the important issue before the people, and he quickly grid down to the ple, and he quickly got down to the meat of his address.

Touching upon the public school question, he said there were over 700.000 children in the State to be educated and brought up to be useful men and women for life, and when one deals with this question, it should be met as a father and mother would meet it, recognizing it as the highest responsibility God has placed upon them placed upon them

Good Schools.

Good Schools.

"I hardly know how to teil the people of Lynchburg." Judge Mann went on "about the condition of the public schools in the rural districts, because your city, under your efficient superintendent, has the model schools of the Commonwealth, and the other cities of the State can well model after you, and I come to you in the sense of humility to get an inspiration from a city that is heralded over the State as a model for all others.

"But go to the country districts, and we find a little school being operated four or five months out of the twelve. There is no reason why this should be, and, if elected Governor, I promise to see, as far as I have the power and influence to see, that appropriations are made that will permit the primary schools in the country districts to operate at least eight months, and, if possible, nine months." He favored higher pay for the teachers, because they deserve it.

White clouted him viciously on the jaw with a right hook, and Britt fought back hard. The crawd yelled: "White! White!" as the new went to their scats.

Whiskey Question.

Whiskey Question.

In taking up the discussion of the Mann law he said he has been characterized as a crank, but he denied the charge. "My opponents," he said, "are not very lively upon this question. It is said that this matter should be left out of politics. It is there, though, and will have to be dealt with. They say it will split the Democratic party. I am proud of what I have done for the cause of temperance in Virginia and willing to take the responsibility of the entire bill."

Judge Mann stated that he had always voted the Democratic ticket and had never cast a Prohibition balot. He denied that he charged the other gubernatorial candidates were opposed to the Mann law; but declared that if they could find it in their hearts to declare openly against one of the men behind the guns, and it in their hearts to declare openly against it he would be in a position to go home it he would be in a position to go it he would be in a position to go nome and make no more political speeches dur-ing the campaign. He showed that the object of the bill was to accept the chal-lenge of the Supreme Court of the State to give the courts a right to say a saloon should not be located where it would prove hurtful ro the community in which it was to be located. "True, the bill was amended," he went on, "but the cutting off of some territory embraced did not rob it of the principles that were in it."

The "Woman's Bill."

The "Woman's Bill."

"I have risked my political life to stand up for the purity of Virginia homes, and still want to use my influence to make them purer. I am unvilling to be the author of a law that is not backed by a strong public gentiment. I have always tried to be conservative, and I believe the bill which bears my name should be called the 'woman's bill.' and not the 'Mann bill.' It has accomplished the objects for which it was designed.'

In closing Judge Mann said he intended to advocate those measures which he believed to be best for the heople and to make the coming generation worthy to stand by the side of the daughters of the MONTGOMERY, Alah., May 5.—The Alabama Ratirohd "Conimission completed the hearing of the Louisville and Nashville Ratiroad and the Nashville Ratiroad and the Nashville Chatta-Rooga and St. Louis Ratiway to-day in the investigation of freight rates in this State, with a view of general revision. The testimony of the Louisville and Nashville consumed the major portion of the time, during which President Lilton H. Smith and General Traffic Manager C. B. Compton were under examination. Smith's statements were nearly all voluntary, and purported to show the immense investments of his road in the State of Alabama since, its bistory begun in 1852. He told of how the entire properties were owned by an aggregation of the people and municipalities along the line until 1879, when he safit they were unfortunaely andulined by speculators. He admitted that two years thereafter the capital stock was increased from $3,000,000 to $15,000,000, and he characterized this proceeding as very oulpable. He said, however, in the final justification of the road, ceeding as very culpable. He said, how ever, in the final justification of the road that since that time it has spent in Ala ever, in the final justification of the road, that since that time it has spent in Alabama developments more than the amount of the $3,00,00 of additional capital stock, which President B. B. Comer, of the Alabama Railroad Commission, characterized in "watered." Mr. Smith said that now it was a fortunate thing for the road and its patrons that it is now impossible for speculators "to tamper with more than a minority of the stock." Mr. Smith refterated to-day his denial of President Comer's charges that when the Atlantic Coast Line in 1902 acquired a majority of the Louisville and Nashville stock, there was fould in its treasury a cash fund of the committee that it is the intention of his road on May 22d to increase the rate on domestic and steam coal from the Birmingham district to Anniston, Gadsden and Alabama City from fifty cents to seventy cents per ton. He said he would like to do this with the acquiesence of the commission, but otherwise its enforcement will be attempted. In explanation he said If was through commercial necessity that the rate of fifty cents is to be raised.

Her recovery from the almost complete breakdown which followed the falliure of the jury in her case to agree early yesterday amorning, began resterday afternoon and has progressed steadily. There was a big bundle of letters for the prisoner to-day, and with them a number of picture postal cards. One of these bore a message urging Miss Patterson to keep up her courage and to be "game to the last." Several other cards bore messages of a similar nature. Miss Patterson's condition was so much improved this afternoon that she went to the counsel room in the Tombs prison and had a lively talk with her counsel and Mr. and Mrs. J. ## LIKES DON CAESAR

The old-world romantic drama, Don Caesar de Bazan, was produced on the Academy stage last night for the first time in several years, Charles B. Han-ford taking the title role and Miss Marie Drofnah the part of Maritana, the warm-ford taking the title role and Miss Marie Drofnant the part of Maritana, the warm-blooded loyal gypsy mald.

Mr. Hanford's work was a finished piece of acting, and Miss Drofnah was especially strong in emotional phases of the character she represented. It was her acting that brought on an enthuslastic curtain call, in which she, Mr. Hanford and Mr. Frank Hening (Don Jose de Santarom) appeared.

Act 2 is suggestive of a cynical scene in "Quo Vadis," wherein Pretonius and his mistress, at a great banquet, die by letting blood from their veins, each meanwhile vieing with the gayety in jest and wit. It recalls also a scene in Pickwick, in which De Wolf Hopper sings the memorable song of "Boys Will Be Boys."

"Don Caesar de Bazan," though representative of a period in the latter part of the seventeenth century, is wholesome in the moral outcome, virtue triumphing in the face of powerful temptation.

Don Caesar himself is not unlike de Artagnon, in "The Three Musketeers"—a spendthrift, a nobleman, a solder of fortune, handy with a sword, debonair, defender of the weak and foe of the oppressor.

As early as 6:30 o'clock yesterday norning a large number of people had visited the cemetery, and many of them went to the grave of Lee and spent ome moments looking at the lovely flowers that completely cover the spot. The appearance of the grave after it had been covered over and the floral offerings had been placed thereon is effectively portrayed in the picture in this ssue. The flowers have not yet suffi ciently faded to lose their beauty, and many of them will keep fresh and beautiful to-day. It is likely that thousands will visit the cemetery to-morrow to take a look at the grave of the man whom thousands followed to the ceme-

The city yesterday resumed its usual life and activity. The visiting military had all departed in the night for their homes, and the local militiamen had donned their citizens' clothing and gone back to work. The embiems of mourn-ing remain upon many business' houses and public buildings, but a number were being stripped and restored to their nor-mal appearance during the day. The mal appearance during the day. The flags which had flown at half-mast for nearly a week were fluitering from the staff-heads yesterday.

Death of Mrs. Martha Harwood.

Death of Mrs. Martha Harwood.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

ST. LOUIS, MO., May 5.—In the death of Mrs. Martha Harwood, which occurred early Friday morning, St. Louis has lost one of its oldest residents—one who located here before the city was incorporated.

Mrs. Harwood was in her 96th year. She had lived in St. Louis since 1818. When she was brought here from her birthplace at Richmond, Va., by her father. Colonel James Lakeman. When the town was incorporated in 1821 her father became a member of the first Town Council under Mayor Lane.

She is survived by five children, all residing in St. Louis or vicinity.

Miss Semaj D. F. Boice has returned after a residence of two years in Washington, and will make her home here. She is an elo-cutionist of rure ability and had a large class in Washington.
